PATTERSON DISTRICT.

Old Camp Coming to the Front.

About sixty or seventy miles north of Pioche lies what is known as Patterson Mountains, the snow capping of which can be plainly seen from here. In the sixties much activity in mining was going on there and considerable high grade ore was shipped. But before any very extensive development was done Silver Park was discovered and the Camp was abandoned in favor of the later place. Then a year or two later Pioche was discovered and both camps were deserted and remains practically as today.

A Correspondent of the RECORD visited Patterson last week and observed the following facts which may be of interest to those who are seeking mineral territory between Pioche and Ely.

The mountain range in general is practically a continuation of the Bristol range but slightly broken in the vicinity of Pony Springs and rising to an elevation of 9000 feet above sea level.

The Country rock appears to be Silurian limestone underlain by Cambrian quartzite which is visible to the observer on either side of the mountain.

The country is intruded by diorite dikes ranging in width from 30 to 200 feet and cutting the country formation apparently at right angles. These dikes are frequently accompanied by quartz veins, carrying in some instances fabulously rich silver ore. In addition to this the country is cross fissured, some ledges extending from east to west across the mountain and cropping through the massive limestone—one ledge in particular is traceable for several miles and shows at different points high grade ore.—The district appears to be about six or fifteen miles in extent and there are good showings to be seen everywhere. Very little development outside of old Patterson itself has been done, yet every ledge observed showed high grade ore. From the dump of nearly every post hole specimens running from hundreds to thousands of ounces in silver can readily be picked up. But no one lives there, and there is nothing doing, only three ranches in the country and they are from fifteen to fifty miles apart. The nearest supply point is fifty miles and that only a store and postoffice. Water is abundant and the mountains are clad with timber adaptable to building and mining purposes. Feed is plentiful and wild game—hens, grouse, and deer are numerous, and save a half dozen individuals are the only inhabitants. But this condition will not remain long for the prospect or is winding his way toward Patterson Mountain.

From Ely, Goldfield, Tonopah, Bullfrog, Pioche and other points they have begun to move. Spring has just fairly opened up there, though snow in some places is yet 20 feet deep. The prospectors slowly approaching this country from Ely on account of the boom there is said to be somewhat exciting, and Piochers might make a note of this to advantage. It is a good mineral country and there are opportunities there at present for a great many people. Perhaps no part of Nevada has been so much neglected as Patterson mountain, but the railroad now building into Ely and the one which will shortly build into Pioche will flood that country with live energetic people who are not afraid to take a chance to make a fortune. I tell you men, Patterson mountain is a good mineral country and you had better get in on something there if you want to shake off the curse of poverty.

The foundation of the new State library at Carson is completed and erection of the structural part begun.

The postoffice Department has just established a six times a week mail service from Austin to Belmont, via Mahattan.
